

INTRODUCTION

Hi, welcome.

Before you get started, please note that this is not an overnight victory. You have to be willing to put in the work and be patient with yourself. Give yourself some grace. After all, this is something that you have likely carried for a very long time, perhaps even decades. The kicker is that you'll have to make a bit of a lifestyle change, even if it's for a little while. Understand that this virus, or any virus as a matter of fact, likes to take advantage of poor and compromised immune systems. So, in order to get rid of it, you'll need to incorporate a few things into your diet. With time and patience, this process really works.

Here's the part that you won't want to hear. In order to be successful, you'll have to let go of some unhealthy habits. If you really want to heal your body, you have to make some changes. Start with surveying your kitchen. Eliminate all the junk food, processed food, snacks (sugary and savory), frozen food, sodas, sugary drinks, alcohol, energy drinks, coffee. Try very hard to drop unhealthy habits like smoking (drugs and cigarettes). Otherwise, you can jeopardize the entire process. You're only suppressing your system with more harmful toxins and putting more stress on your liver and other organs. Cleansing the liver is going to be one of the most helpful benefits of this entire process.

You will notice that most of the food groups throughout all the phases are quite consistent with a few gradual additions. It's designed to be fairly easy for you to keep up and follow through.
